Interested in offering professional quality services to women and families experiencing unintended pregnancy?

Already working in pregnancy support, but would like to be professionally qualified and recognised?

Real Choices Australia, is now offering nationally accredited training, fully contextualised to the work undertaken by people in the pregnancy support field.

Certificate IV in Pastoral Care (CHC41108)*

This course is designed to prepare students to undertake specialised work with women and families during the peri-natal period, from conception to the first year after birth.

It provides training in all of the following areas:

- Supportive counselling skills
- Decision making counselling skills
- Working in the community sector
- Pastoral care approaches to service delivery
- Developing and delivering programs on parenting, health and wellbeing
- Educating on sexuality and reproductive issues

Placement in an organisation providing relevant services gives students practical experience in the role.

Undertaken over 1 year full time
